

Mr. President...

Polar bears are already in deep trouble.

Scientists predict that, without help, more than two-thirds of the world's polar bears could be gone by 2050, including all polar bears in Alaska.

The last thing they need is more global warming that melts away the sea-ice they need to survive. That's why, this Thanksgiving season, we're calling on you to "pardon the polar bear" by taking real action on climate change. That includes rejecting the Keystone XL pipeline.

The climate crisis will only deepen if the Keystone is built. Extracting and refining tar sands oil produces two times more greenhouse gases per barrel than conventional oil

If Keystone is built, it'll mean such an additional reliance on dirty fossil fuels that leading climate scientist Dr. James Hansen has called the pipeline "game over" for avoiding catastrophic climate change.

It isn't just the Arctic that will suffer, of course. Already around the United States and across the globe we're seeing heat records shattered, epic drought, rising sea levels and deadly hurricanes, storms and tornadoes.

Please, Mr. President, give polar bears – and the rest of us – a break from the climate crisis. Yes, pardon those turkeys this Thanksgiving and then give polar bears a reason to be thankful too.
